PRIEST MURDER IN IRELAND LINKED TO TAYLOR CASE

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Confidence has the troubles of this little old world by the forelock and is making it follow directions. Real confidence—not bluster—can accomplish when other methods fail.

There's a young man in our neighborhood who received a bicycle for Christmas. He struggled with it for weeks but couldn't seem to ride it. Yesterday after it had been tinkered with a little and the child had been convinced that a little well-timed "propaganda" that "now you can ride it," he mounted and rode away in a cloud of dust. Confidence aid forgetting about some of the bumps he got in his initial efforts spelled victory in this case.

Oh, hum! Here's another cold weather story called to our attention. The Fresno national guard lost $450 because of icy roads the other day. That amount had been sold in tickets for a dance and when the orchestra was stalled on the highway the money had to be refunded. That's a common occurence in the east.

Another dog has paid with his life for being faithful to his master. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Talia of Bell locked their dog in their home while they went out on a visit. A gas heater had been left burning. The heater ignited the wall. The dog's barks, although heard by neighbors, went unheeded until smoke started pouring from the dwelling. The dog, who tried to save the house lost his life. There's a thought in that—maybe it would be a good idea not to leave dumb animals in a condition where they will not be able to help themselves in case of emergency.

The old days of the past are not entirely gone. A modern ship gracefully sailing across the Pacific Ocean suddenly finds itself beset by a smallpox epidemic. The captain of the vessel which is without means to help itself has called for aid. Forty of the crew of forty-five are reported to be suffering from the dread disease.

Now comes Dr. Ira B. Cross, of the University of California, one of America's foremost economists with the statement that another world war will be upon us within five years. Peace attempts are futile as long as economic controversies exist, the professor points out. Although we can't quite agree on the nearness of the next armed strife, we do agree with his statement on peace.

A fugitive for 13 years, a former Texas man has just been freed and is returning to an unknown port in New Zealand where he has amassed a fortune since 1916. He was originally accused of embezzling $160,000. Those who started proceedings against him stated that complete restitution had been made. The fact remains, however, that the man probably got his start with the embezzled funds. Not a very good example for those who find saving the first thousand the hardest.

Hurrah!! And a couple of more hurrahs. It is rumored, reported and hinted that advertising talks, too generously sandwiched in between radio programs will soon be a thing of the past. Too good to be true.

Natatorium To Open Feb. 14

Completely repainted and renovated, the Richmond municipal natatorium will be opened for the spring and summer season on Feb. 14, City Manager James A. McVittie stated yesterday.

The building has been closed for more than a month while the pool and building were thoroughly cleaned.

DIRECTOR'S EARLY LIFE TRACED

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 11.—UP—Black-mail based on the alleged death or injury of a priest in Ireland many years ago was advanced today by Mrs. L. A. Armstrong of Fort Worth and her sister, Mrs. Paul B. Terhune of Houston, Texas, in an effort to do what they could to clear up the William Desmond Taylor murder mystery.

They believe Taylor was the man who in 1915 lived at Mrs. Armstrong' boarding house in Bisbee, Ariz., worked for four months in the mines and then one night disappeared.

They believe that Edward Sands Taylor's missing valet, was a man known to them as Burke, who arrived in Bisbee just as Taylor, then known as Disbrow, left. The man known as Burke, they said, had pursued the man they knew as Disbrow over much of the United States, blackmailing him on the basis of the asserted death or injury of the priest in Ireland.

Identified As Taylor

Later, according to Mrs. Armstrong, she recognized the mysterious Disbrow as William Desmond Taylor when she saw him pictured in the movies. She called other friends who knew him in Bisbee and they confirmed the identification.

She once gave some of her information, including the name of the place in Ireland where she believes Burke or Sands now is, to the Los Angeles district attorney, she claimed.

The story fits in, to a certain extent, with the unusual and mysterious past of Taylor. He appeared in the movies seemingly from nowhere and soon arose to leading place among the motion picture directors.

Silent About Past

Although he had friends and was active in Hollywood, he was silent regarding his past and would not brook questions about it. Since he was murdered in 1923 many strange stories of the years which preceded his success and prosperity have been uncovered.

While Disbrow was living at Mrs. Armstrong's boarding house as a humble miner, he told Mrs. Armstrong, according to her story to the United Press, that a man was pursuing him from city to city, extracting blackmail. On one occasion, Mrs. Terhune said, he told Mrs. Armstrong he might leave suddenly, should his nemesis appear in town. One day Burke arrived in Bisbee and, true

WATCH OILS SEALER WARNS

MARTINEZ, Jan. 11.—G. W. Andrews, sealer of weight and measures of Contra Costa county, recently submitted a report of the activities of his department for the year of 1929 to J. S. Casey, chief of the division of weights and measures at Sacramento.

The report showed that there were 2747 scales inspected and sealed, 660 corrected, 33 condemned and destroyed, 1617 measuring pumps inspected and sealed and 11 condemned. One thousand thirty five liquid measures, 119 lienal measures, 13,490 packages and 2530 bottles inspected, was also contained in the report.

Andrews stated that the oil substitution act passed by the last legislature will be rigidly enforced during the coming year. This act makes it a misdemeanor to misrepresent or to sell by other than its true name or brand, any fuel or lubricating oil for internal combustion engines.

All violators of this act, according to C. N. Herndon, district supervisor in charge of the enforcement of the act, will be vigorously prosecuted. He states that his office is now prepared to make the necessary analysis of these commodities.

SNOWBOUND TRIO BACK TO SAFETY AFTER TREK

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11.—UP—Trekking into Bald mountain, a short distance from Long Barn today John Nightingale, his wife and seven year old son returned to civilization after seven days and nights in a snow covered wilderness.

After three days of biking over snowdrifts and frozen hammocks of snow and ice the party appeared glad to arrive at a point where they could once again travel by automobile.

All were in great spirits and the best of physical condition. None of them had suffered from their experiences of being snowbound in a tiny mountain cabin at Niagara creek.

Two Greeted

The first to greet the rescuers and rescued was Sheriff D. K. Dambacher of Toulumne county, with a custody warrant for Stanley, son of the Stockton aviator by his first wife.

Mrs. Eva Wren Nightingale of Oakland, the first wife, took the boy in her arms and fed him candy.

He said, "Aw, shucks, I wanted to stay with the gang."

Woman Hungary

"Did you bring any sandwiches?" asked Mrs. Evelyn Nightingale, the Stockton aviator's bride of two months. 'Pshaw' she said when told there were none. "I was all set for a nice turkey sandwich with sweet pickles."

"We had a swell time," she went on. "I didn't mind it a bit. We had plenty of food and were warm. We could have stayed for a week or two."

Meuli and Mermo, mountaineer rescuers were surprised at the reception accorded them. Meuli said, "I don't see why all this fuss."

No word passed between Mrs. Nightingale No. 1, and the adult members of the rescued party. The only indication of regret at parting was the frantic efforts of Meuli's dog to stick with Stanley and the boy's remarks.

PRISON QUIET AT HANGING

CANON CITY, Colo., Jan. 11—UP—The state penitentiary here, scene of the nations most frightful mutiny, was quiet tonight after the execution of Eddie Ives, Denver slayer.

Prison officials had feared the death of Ives might incite the 700 convicts to a frenzy of fear and rage.

During the hanging of Ives and for hours afterward, every precaution was taken to guard against unrest among the convicts.

When the word passed by "grapevine" early today that Ives had "gone over" there was a deathly quiet instead of the expected mutterings of the imprisoned men.

Ives was executed for the murder of Policeman Harry R. Ohle whom he shot during a raid on a negro resort.

Manager Freed Of Liquor Charges

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11—(U.P.)—The manager or housekeeper of an apartment house cannot be expected to know of or be responsible for the bootlegging activities of a tenant in the building, U. C. Commissioner Arthur G. Fiske ruled here today.

The court's decision was made in the case of Mrs. Beatrice Wells, manager, and Dovie King, housekeeper, of an apartment house here, arrested on liquor charges. Fiske dismissed the case.

AVIATORS ON RECORD HOP VANISH

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—UP—A dozen airplane parties which set out today to search for two aviators who started on an altitude flight yesterday and disappeared, had found no trace of the missing men or plane late today.

Six army planes searched all of Long Island without result. Two Fairchild and two New York police department planes cruised over the Jersey and Westchester area and other privately owned ships made independent searches, all in vain.

The missing fliers are Daniel Marra, a former army pilot employed by the Fairchild company, and William Kirkpatrick, an observer for the Aviation corporation, of which the Fairchild company is a subsidiary.

Started Friday

The two started out at 8:45 a. m. yesterday in a new Fairchild cabin plane, with fuel and oil for five and one half hours in the air. Their purpose was to determine the plane's "ceiling," that is, how high it would ascend. It was estimated it would attain an altitude of 18,000 feet.

The takeoff was from the Fairchild field at Farmingdale, Long Island.

The cabin of the plane was heated against the bitter cold, the men carried the usual stand-

No Diptheria Cases Reported

For the last two months there has not been one case of diptheria reported in Richmond, according to Dr. C. R. Blake, city health commissioner.

Dr. Blake, declared that this record is largely due to the weekly immunization clinics which are held at the Richmond Health Center each Saturday. At that time immunization against diptheria and vaccination against smallpox are given.

Yesterday more than 35 school children were given the treatment by Dr. Blake.

City school officials have stated that the record attendance mark maintained here can be laid to the work accomplished at the clinics.

Richmond Woman Faces U. S. Court

MARTINEZ, Jan. 11—Federal authorities yesterday took Mrs. Clara Harris Rose of Richmond into custody on charges of bankruptcy fraud arising in East St. Louis, Ill. In the complaint here, she is charged with conspiring with her husband, Daniel Rose, to conceal $6000 in assets from trustees in bankruptcy.

The complaint was filed with U. S. Commissioner Ernest E. Williams against Mrs. Rose by department of justice agents. Government officials were informed today that she was at liberty on bond in Oakland to appear before Williams on removal proceedings.

HOOVER WILL GIVE VIEWS ON DRY LAW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(U.P.)—President Hoover will submit his own views on necessary prohibition legislation to Congress on Monday along with the recommendations of his law enforcement commission, it was learned tonight.

No indication was given as to the exact nature of the President's new message, but it is understood he will urge the need of the measures to be suggested by the commission and ask prompt action.

The president's message, it was learned at the White House, will run about 600 words, as compared with a 4,000 word report from the law enforcement commission. Congressional leaders submission of this report and the president's views.

The law enforcement commission's recommendations to be submitted Monday, which are understood to include transfer of the prohibition bureau to the justice department, consolidation of border patrol forces, measures to relieve court congestion and codification of prohibition statutes, are expected to be adopted by Congress, but not without considerable debate.

A bill proposing this transfer with exception of the industrial alcohol section of the prohibition unit, was introduced today by Senator King, Dem., Utah.

Insult Charged

KIP RHINELANDER, PALS LOST IN CANYON DURING SNOW STORM

LAS VEGAS, Jan. 11.—UP—Snowdrifts piled ten feet deep along mountain paths and a severe storm which prevented attempts at rescue tonight locked a party led by Kip Rhinelander in Campbell park camp 35 miles from here in a mountain canyon.

With Rhinelander it was said were Mike Mahlan a friend and two rangers named Bobby and Simmons. The party left Las Vegas about a week ago and became marooned by heavy snows which started in the mountains last Thursday. Fear was felt tonight that the supplies taken by the party may be running low.

Friends in Las Vegas said they believed that with the greatest conservation the food supply would run out by Sunday night.

Campbell park is in a canyon at an altitude of 8000 feet and has been a favorite camping place of the millionaire since he came to Nevada to obtain the divorce he recently was granted from the daughter of a negro hack driver.

Another camp is located about two miles below Campbell park and an 83-year old mountaineer left there at 6 p. m. Friday when the snow had piled to three feet along the road and drifted as big has 10 feet in some places.

NORTH SOUTH IN GOVERNOR BATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11—(U.P.)—The ancient battle between "the north and the south" today promised to be resumed—at least as far as California gubernatorial candidates are concerned.

The political hopes of James Rolph, Jr., which flared into life and then waned when he sought and failed to win the nomination for governor in 1920, were flaming again, according to one of the San Francisco mayor's closest personal and political friends.

If Rolph enters the political arena again, as is regarded most likely, with an announcement expected Monday, it will bring an alignment of two northern and two southern California candidates for the republican nomination. So far not a peep has been heard from the democratic sidelines in the state.

Young Mum

Gov. C. C. Young, the other northerner, has not yet formally announced candidacy to succeed himself, but it is an accepted fact that he will do so. His platform will be a continuance of his office record.

From the southern half of the state there will be Ray L. Riley, present state controller, who was first in the field with an announcement that he would campaign on a platform of financial efficiency in governmental operation.

Already hinted so broadly that no one doubts that he will come out in the open, is the second southern candidate, Buron Fitts, district attorney of Los Angeles county. Fitts, it is expected, will be backed by the so-called "machine" of Friend W. Richardson, former governor. Richardson announced recently that Fitts should be "drafted" as a candidate.

Rolph Silent

The strength of Young and Fitts is fairly well known. Riley has been a popular state official, and already is vigorously campaigning.

The big puzzle for the politicians will be just how strong "Smilin' Jimmy" Rolph will be. Running on both republican and democratic tickets in 1920, Rolph was edged out in the republican vote by Richardson. He won the democratic primary, but under the California law could not run in the final election because he was registered as a republican and failed to win the nomination of his own party. Friends say he is stronger now that ever.

Rolph said nothing today to either confirm or deny the report of his candidacy. He will wait until Monday.

POLICE PROBE BOY'S DEATH

PASADENA, Jan. 11—(U.P.)—An investigation into the mysterious death of 5-year old Kenneth Rundle was made by investigators for the coroner and district attorney today.

Intimation that the child may have come to its death as a result of administration or use of drugs, caused the coroner to order an inquest an hour before the body wa sto have been cremated.

The child's body was held at the C. F. Lamb undertaking parlor where it had been taken from a privately conducted school for subnormal children.

Chief trial deputy district attorney Daniel Beecher refused to comment on the child's death other than to report that the intimation that the Rundle boy may have died from drugs had been made o the district attorney's office.

Beecher said that Mrs. Edward Huntington Williams, who conducts the school, was not involved in the investigation.

The child had supposedly died from pneumonia.

As the funeral services had been arranged for they were carried one, except for the cremation. Coroner Frank A. Nance declared a report would be made as soon as the autopsy could be completed.

Hoover Son Wins Approval

CAROLINE HYDE, cabinet "deb" admits that Allan Hoover is "very nice" and that she likes him.

INCREASE IN SUGAR TARIFF HIT IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—UP—Democrats opened a vigorous campaign in the Senate today against increasing the sugar tariff rates. Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, took the lead, declaring the proposed change would cost the consumer an additional $50,000,000 annually.

Opposing the 25 percent rate advance, Harrison asserted the Republicans were attempting to protect the American cane and beet industry, whose entire annual output could not supply this country for more than 60 days.

This industry has cost sugar consumers $2,000,000,000 in tariff rates the last 20 years, he contended.

Harrison's speech climaxed the fight against the finance committee proposal to raise the existing 1.76 cents a pound Cuban duty to 2.20 cents a pound, and came at a time when leaders were conceding that the issue would be decided in the Senate by an extremely close margin.

Vote Seen

The Democrats have found only five on their side who will vote for an increase, but the Republican farm bloc is split over a bounty proposal while the eastern Republicans expect to vote with the Democrats. The coalition is split on the issue.

Until today the advocates of the higher rates had things their own way. Senators Ranedell and Broussard, Louisiana, Democrats, and Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance committee, from a

Ousted Officer Seeks Return

MARTINEZ, Jan. 11—Charles Golden, night policeman of Antioch, who resigned under fire after an alleged brawl in an Antioch rooming house, is reported slated to resume his old position when the city council of Antioch meets Monday night.

There are but two applicants for Golden's post, and petitions have been circulated in Antioch by Golden and his friends asking his re-appointment. It is reported that more than 200 have signed the petition.

Golden resigned his post after he was alleged to have shot Clyde Nichols in the leg during an alleged brawl in a house in Antioch. Nichols is facing trial on charges preferred by Beatrice Baker, whose house is being abated as a nuisance under the red-light abatement act.

THIRTY DEAD, MANY DRIVEN FROM HOME

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(U.P.)—The rising tides of mid-winter floods in two states piled more misery and suffering on the middlewest today as it dug out of the second big snow storm of the season.

Thousands whose homes are on the lowlands bordering rivers in Arkansas and Indiana have been driven to the bluffs by rivers racing at flood stage and fed by heavy rains and melting snows.

Northeastern Arkansas, drenched earlier this week by from 9 to 12 inches of rain reported additional precipitation and fear that levees would crumble under the strain. Moderating temperatures lifted part of the burden of refuge, but more rain sent the rivers higher.

Rivers Rise

The St. Francis and Big Lake rivers had risen five feet in three days and lapped at the top of levees patrolled by farmers who live in the danger zone. Both rivers had spread over the lowlands not protected by dykes and hundreds of refugees were dependent on the Red Cross for food and shelter.

The White river, [illegible], a potential trouble maker, became a lake 200 miles long and from three to five miles wide as the record rains poured from the hills to the stream.

The pace of the muddy Mississippi quickened around Memphis from the heavy flow of its tributaries but little danger is feared from this source unless heavy rains in the water shed follow.

Flood Feared

Southern Indiana rivers ran at flood stage tonight with more rain in sight. The Wabash river ran eight feet above flood stage at Vincennes and the worst flood since 1913 was feared.

Lowlands were overflowed and the peak apparently had not yet been reached. Damage ran into the thousands when corn fields not yet harvested and wheat plantings were inundated.

More rain was forecast for the area tonight and tomorrow.

Snow Falls

With the rivers carrying their icy burden of flood waters, two thirds of the nation labored under a blanket of snow, one fringe of

Unidentified Man Believed Suicide

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Jan. 11—(U.P.)—An unidentified man, apparently a suicide, was found today on the state highway near here. A pistol at his side and a bullet hole in his head. He was about 60 years of age. No papers or identification marks were found, although the man was well dressed.

Police Hunt Man Who Pursued Girl

BERKELEY, Jan. 11—(U.P.)—Police today searched for a "masher" who pursued Miss Margaret Leist.

A cafe proprietor summoned the police when a girl ran into the restaurant screaming for help on Friday night.

The man followed the girl onto a street car, got off at the same point as she did and followed her until she ran into the cafe and shouted for protection.

FABLES FOR THE FAIR

The Last Animal To Be Civilized By Woman

NOW it's in Northern China that the anthropologists have dug up the most recently discovered specimen
Of primitive man, who may be the missing link,
And who is, anyhow, some cave man or other—
And thus vastly interesting to anthropologists—but not, we insist, to women!

Every time a modern, metropolitan, civilized woman reads about the excavation of a cave man's bones
She draws a sigh of relief, and thanks her stars
That most cave men, nowadays, are in the skeleton state
And not in the flesh—or in New York.
For, judging from all she hears about him—
And even though it shatter one of the last refuges of masculine egotism—
A modern woman simply has no manner of use for a cave man—
The rarin', glarin', drag-her-by-the-hair-in male creature,
Whom woman has spent the best years of her life—the best several million years—
In teaching to wipe his feet, drop his cigar ashes in a tray, speak politely—
And even to respect her mind and her character and her point of view.
This common delusion that every woman, in her secret heart, yearns to have a cave man knock her down and drag her off
Is, we think, a sort of wish fulfillment of the well-trained, house-broken, civilized male
Who subconsciously fancies himself in the cave man role;
The few women who publicly indorse the delusion
Do so with tongue in cheek—it's just one of their ways of flattering the other sex.
It was, we believe, George Meredith who defined woman
As "the last animal to be civilized by man;"
Every woman knows, of course, that this is an unstated truth—
That in actual fact man is the last animal to be civilized by woman—
That her job is not even yet finished, although she can point with pride to certain at least semi-civilized specimens,
Whose most distressing defect is a tendency to revert to the uncivilized or cave man type
When woman, the civilizer, is absent or comparatively scarce.
Young men, for example, who have been marooned for four years
In that big barracks, the college exclusively for men,
Often reach the point where they pride themselves on being hard-boiled about women,
And quote with approval the cave man's conjugal philosophy
Summarized in the modern maxim: "Marry 'em young, treat 'em rough, tell 'em nothing!"
This type of young man often has to be taught all over again
The small domestic graces and courtesies which he learned from his mother,
And promptly unlearned in his womanless college life;
Moreover, it's not only his manners but his mental attitude toward women that suffers.
He has to re-learn the obvious facts that the modern girl
Has brains, ambitions, rights as much to be regarded as his own.
Suffragists used to wonder what would be their job, after they got the vote—
They need look no further than each coming generation of young men.
Which must be taught anew the principles of feminism.
A shining sidelight on the superiority of the civilized man, from a woman's point of view,
Is the dark contrast in the attitude of those modern rough diamonds,
The men in such wild and woolly mining camps as are left in the modern world.
If you want the lowdown on what such men think of women,
Read what Alicia O'Reardon Overbeck has to say in the current Harper's—
And thank heaven you live in this neck of the woods,
Where men—on the whole—are civilized, and—on the whole—have a decent appreciation of women.
In the world's wild places, says Mrs. Overbeck, who has lived there for years,
"There seems to be one commonly accepted idea—
"That women are at the bottom of any mischief in the camp,
"That they are envious and jealous,
"That they quarrel amongst themselves,
"That they secretly connive at all times to usurp the place of their betters—man.
"We are not infrequently referred to as 'those damned women.'"
Yet, she continues, "the years I have spent amongst these pioneer women
"Have taught me that they are a pretty good lot—
"Not plaster saints, perhaps, neither craving nor receiving the bent knee of adoration;
"But on the whole loyal, uncomplaining, courageous, unselfish,
"And gallantly willing to do their part and more in any emergency.
"Yet the miner clings with almost childish insistence
"To his theory of the villainy and duplicity of woman.
"He is convinced that she is going to tame him, domesticate him, encroach on his domain;
"And, while he may extend to an occasional woman his unstinted comradeship,
"He, nevertheless, regards the sisterhood on the whole as distinctly dangerous."
Even the "occasional woman" whom this nature's nobleman accepts is assured that she is tolerated
Because she isn't womanly—that is, like other women—
"And then follow harrowing tales of the roguery of the sex,
"Of the quarrels they brewed, of the gossip they broadcast,
"Of the class wars they instigated.
"At first," admits Mrs. Overbeck, "I was fired with a militant desire "To come back with tales of the women I had known
"Who had stood by in times of illness and death,
"Who had given wise counsel and nourishing eggnogs to men straightening up after a bat,
"Who had faced the starkest loneliness and privation without complaint.
"I could have told, too, of several merry little messes
"That had been brewed by the gentlemen themselves
"Through tale bearing and idle gossip.
"It is a fact that if you really want the lowdown on any scandal,
"You should go to the men.
"They always know, and I have never found them reticent about telling.
"But what's the use?" ends Mrs. Overbeck, philosophically.
Argument and denunciation probably are no use at all—
But most women who read this shrewd summary
Of what is the nearest thing now existing
To the primitive, uncivilized, cave man attitude toward women—the female sex—
Most women will use this report as further confirmation
Of their preference for the civilized modern men among whom they live,
And of their resolve to stick to modern civilization
Where men may be men—without believing the worst about women!

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

"LET ME ALONE!"
This is the cry of the child.

It is the cry of a lot of people these days when we have so many bosses, good, bad and indifferent.

The child shrieks for freedom and so does every one of us.

"Let me alone!"

It is the cry of the sensitive soul in the office, who is continually being tortured by those who have no feelings.

The husband who mustn't eat this—the wife who mustn't do that—the son who can't have this and the daughter who mustn't touch that—each cries with one wild voice,

"LET ME ALONE!"

The Housewife's Scrapbook

When the cake of soap reaches the stage where it is ready to break, place it on the new cake, put both in warm water and press firmly together; then put aside, and when cold you will have a single cake of soap and no small pieces to lie around, nor even a mite of waste.

You can make your own cement for filling floor cracks, &c. Sift wood ashes, add salt and sufficient water to bring it to the right consistency. It will be found an excellent cement for many household purposes.

To lengthen the service of glassware place it, while new, into a pan containing slightly salted water; let it come to a boil slowly, then boil well and allow it to cool slowly.

When there are greasy dishes to wash add one tablespoonful of vinegar to the dish water. This is also a good way to remove the odor of fish from dishes and cooking utensils.

When making soap use an egg beater to mix it after all ingredients are put together. You can do it in about half the time required for stirring.

Velveteen Coats

The short coat of velveteen in black or color will be worn with a clever cotton or linen sports frock by the spectator spending the cold months in the South. Two attractive coat models make a point of neck lines. In one the attached scarf that ties like a cravat is a very becoming type. The other neckline is flat and collarless, trimmed only with a self-bow at one side to emphasize the feminine influence.

The possibilities within the range of cottons seems limitless, weaves imitating other fashionable fabrics. A costume adapted from an original by Schiaparelli is comprised of a belted dress of cotton tweed in color and a short collarless jacket of white kid lined in the cotton and trimmed with it at the tops of the sleeves.

White pique remains a favorite for the tennis frock, ensembled with its matching coat. One new version is the jacket of white pique appliqued in color simulating a printed all-over design with border.

Do You Know

You should always use a silver fork instead of a steel one in beating eggs because the phosphorus of the yolk forms a disagreeable salt on the steel?

The sides of the hot water bag will not stick together if you blow a little air into the bag immediately after you empty it and replace the cap quickly.

The Family Budget

By Emilie Hoffman

ARE you starting the new year right with a budget? Many a business man would not run his business as his home is run. The home is the business of the housewife and is just as important as the business of the man—probably more so because the family financial status depends largely upon the proper management of the home and the business failure of many a man has been due to the extravagances of his home-partner.

To make a budget a success there must, in the first place, be complete co-operation between the home-maker and the home-provider.

Having carefully divided the income into expenses for rent, food, clothing, running expenses, education, recreation and sundries and the savings it is necessary to keep strict account of expenses and possessions. Do this by account book, cards or loose-leaf note book. Summarize your disbursements and savings monthly to ascertain whether you are keeping within the budget and to see if you can use the money to greater advantage.

If you have never run your home on a family budget begin now. It will help you to get the most out of your income and, once established, you will never again manage the home in the old haphazard way. Try it for a month or a week anyway.

If this is your first attempt at budgeting it is well to know that on the average income it has been estimated that the ideal plan is to allow 20 per cent. for rent or its equivalent if you own your home, 25 per cent. for food, 15 per cent. for running expenses, 15 per cent. for clothing and 25 per cent. for education, recreation, &c. Savings should be at least 10 per cent. and this may come out of the last-mentioned fund.

Of course these figures may vary according to individual requirements and in each household the income must be distributed according to the needs of the family. Where medical services are continual, as in the case of a chronic disease, this expense would require a larger allowance and to another item, perhaps the clothing, a smaller allotment may be made. Where servants are employed the running expenses would be higher.

In planning the family budget first deduct income tax from the income. Taxes, insurance, &c., on the home go in the rent column. Personal insurance is considered as a saving.

Household Wastes

USING a plate of cracker crumbs or flour to roll croquettes, fish, &c., when only a tablespoonful, perhaps, in a saucer will be sufficient.

Tea and coffee canisters left open to invite insects and dust and destroy the aroma.

Leaving soap in the dish water or the water used in cleaning.

The broom for sweeping used to scrub with.

The Biography of a Duchess

THE Duchess of Sermoneta sends the story of her life to American readers, with the intriguing title, "Things Past," and with a promising foreword by Robert Hichens, English novelist and playwright, who evidently has come under the spell of this direct descendant of William Locke, about whose charms one reads in Boswell's "Life of Johnson." Pride in family is the keynote of the life story of the Duchess of Sermoneta.

The Duchess of Sermoneta is lady-in-waiting to the Queen of Italy and is a member of one of Italy's oldest noble families, the Colonnas. During her life she has known many of the best and most renowned people in Europe, and in "Things Past," she brushes against these people in order that her readers may see them as she has seen them. Among people whose names are mentioned in "Things Past," are King George, Queen Mary, Queen Victoria, Empress Eugenie, Lady Diana Duff-Cooper, the Asquiths, Winston Churchill, Lord Kitchener, Lord Balfour, Marion Crawford, with whom the biographer had a long and interesting friendship; Robert Hichens, who vouches that "the Duchess of Sermoneta has certainly known how to live;" d'Annunzio, Mussolini, James Stillman, the American banker; Jacob Schiff, Alfred Rothschild and King Edward.

The Duchess of Sermoneta has a sense of humor that makes her stories of these people most entertaining.

About a certain circus that Alfred Rothschild gave in his home, which King Edward attended, she tells the following anecdote:

"Then a little dog rushed on the scene and assumed a curious attitude in the middle of the ring. I must say at once that I am extremely short-sighted. I fumbled for my eyeglass, exclaiming gayly: 'Oh look, sir! Here is at last an animal that can do something!'

"'Hush, my dear child!' said the King in an undertone, 'that is exactly what is occurring . . .'

"And how he laughed. One chuckle after another shook him all over. . . ."

The biographer tells another amusing story of a walk she had with Lord Kitchener. Lord Kitchener had suggested taking the Duchess to see some interesting Chinese porcelain and then to Carrington's, the court jeweler, who would show them the crown jewels that were being cleaned up for the coronation. Lord Kitchener suggested that they walk, which they did, although it was difficult for the lady to keep up with the long strides of the gentleman.

"When we left the Bond Street Gallery," continues the writer, "Lord Kitchener again said firmly, 'We will walk,' and off we went to Carrington's through the blazing July sunshine. It was interesting to be able to examine at close quarters the Koh-i-noor and the Sceptre and other historic objects that are not approachable in everyday life, and after that we emerged once more into the long streets. My cavalier then said: 'I must be off now. . . I'm busy. Goodby,' and in a second he had vanished in the crowd and I picked my way along as best I could until I found a taxi."

Wouldn't you like to hear a few of the author's impressions of the American men with whom she has been brought into contact?

Of Jacob Schiff: "He was a charming old man, the soul of honesty and honor and deeply attached to his religion."

Of James Stillman: "He was a sad and silent man, at least so he seemed to me. He took me to see a Rembrandt and a Gainsborough he had just bought at Seligman's and which did not seem to give him any apparent pleasure, and he told me he could not bear the Ritz, with 'all those overdressed American women with pearl necklaces.' I remember this as the only definite statement I ever heard him make, in fact a real cri du coeur, as he was always so exceedingly cautious in expressing his opinion."

Readers will thoroughly enjoy "Things Past" by the Duchess of Sermoneta. There is so much meat in what she says in 325 pages of interesting material that it will take a long time for readers to enjoy her company. Every minute will be well spent, however, in the presence of many whose acquaintance could not be made under more fortunate circumstances.

An understanding of the writer might be had from this brief quotation from the pen of Marion Crawford, in a letter addressed to the Duchess in 1907:

"I suppose the mere fact of a fall in the hunting field does not count with you any more than the splitting of a sail or carrying away of a spar is a serious matter to me, but please avoid breaking your neck, which is not only ornamental in itself but carries a head with something in it, thereby differing from most necks! . . ."

"Things Past," by the Duchess of Sermoneta, is published by D. Appleton & Co.

The Beauty Shop

"Seven Days in a Bath Tub (with variations)"

"SOME time ago you wrote an article on bathing; different kinds. Won't you be kind enough to repeat it some time soon?" So writes a most gracious reader.

Yes, with the very greatest pleasure—and thank you for the title.

To vary the daily tubbing and to make it twice as healthful and beautifying, there are salt baths, "milk" baths, bran, starch and cold air baths. Each is simple to prepare and each is refreshing and delightful.

The salt bath is self-explanatory. One simply adds to the usual hot tub two or three handfuls of sea salt (purchasable at drug stores) or plain table salt. Excellent for those who are susceptible to colds too.

The salt rub is quite another thing. It consists in rubbing down the body with table salt moistened with hot, tepid or cold water, then briskly rubbing the body dry, without rinsing. Preferably, the salt rub should be given hot, and before bed-time. It leaves the body vigorous and deliciously smooth.

Now the bran bath is given with bran bags—marvelous to relate. And the bags are made like this: Fill a few cheesecloth bags (about the size of your hand) with the following mixture: One cupful of powdered oatmeal, one cupful of bran, half a cupful of pulverized Castile soap and an ounce of orris root. Sew up the open sides of the bags and use them in your tub just as you would a wash cloth or bath brush. Most beautifying they are!

Starch baths leave the skin satiny too. They are prepared like the salt bath and should be taken warm.

Contrary to its name, the "milk" bath we are going to tell you about is neither milk nor anywhere near to being as costly as milk—that is, for bathing. The chief ingredient is that famous old bleach and astringent, tincture of benzoin. A teaspoonful or two added to a shallow bath of warm water, makes a milky mixture—hence the name "milk" bath—which is a remarkable beauty tonic. Used once weekly or fortnightly, the benzoin bath is no strain on the purse.

When, however, you are in the extravagant mood, try this bath de luxe composed of the usual tub of warm water, plus: a generous dash of the following: Bitter almonds, 8 grams, sweet almonds, 32 grams; rose water, 180 grams and benzoic acid 1 gram. Steep the almonds in some of the rose water until they are softened, then mash them into a paste, strain and add the rest of the ingredients.

For the courageous, there is the cold air bath. To be taken on such snappy morns as we are suffering at the moment. To be taken, more specifically, in a cold room but not a drafty room, just by rubbing the body with a Turkish towel. Rub vigorously for about three minutes, then dress.

Hosiery Shades

COLORS in silk stockings for the fall and winter derive their names from the rich tones of certain commodities such as brown and maple sugar and powdery cocoa, the latter treated to a taupe cast. These three may be worn with green. Maple and cocoa taupe look well with red, purple and black.

"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson Sermon today in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon include the following from the Bible: "And a certain woman, which had an issue of blood twelve years, when she had heard of Jesus, came in the press behind, and touched his garment. For she said, If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole. And straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up; and she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague"—Mark 5:25, 27-29.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We approach God, or Life, in proportion to our spirituality, our fidelity to Truth and Love; and in that ration we know all human need and are able to discern the thought of th the sick and the sinning for the purpose of healing them. Whoever reaches this point of moral culture and goodness cannot injure others, and must do them good"—p. 95.

A Complete Diet

When MILK is from a cow properly fed and cared for,
it brings to your table
all the elements
your family needs
for health and well-being.
When the cow is kept in a dirty, fly-infested shed, or when MILK is sold
from unsanitary container, it is one of the most dangerous foods
known to man.
The wrong kind of MILK is worse than no milk at all.

THREE RULES OF LOVE, HOW THEY FUNCTION

Here are the three rules for love as laid down by "The Love Doctor" at the Fox-California theater today and tomorrow which cause all the trouble: First, if you fall in love, say so, if you like, but never let the loved one be quite sure you mean it. Second, make yourself scarce. Be as devoted as you like but don't always be on hand: Third, try and make the loved one jealous.

Richard Dix as "The Love Doctor" the story from the famous play "The Boomerang," has an awful time escaping his own advice. He being under the illusion that you can forget heart troubles.

"The Love Doctor" is a snappy farce of a young doctor and his society patients suffering from all sorts of horrible maladies. The women he cures with his kind words, the men with his lovely nurses. Then comes the day when he finds that he is madly in love with one of his nurses, but a young blonde society deb thinks otherwise and goes out to get her man. She a most does—until she finds that the doctor intends to take her with him to an insane asylum and give her all kinds of notables as associates.

Clever situations, fast dialogue and really commendable acting make "The Love Doctor" as good a farce comedy as has yet been produced in the talkies.

Fox talking News and Collegians are also on the program.

Town Hit By $15,000 Fire

TACOMA, Jan. 11.—UP—Half the business section of the little town of Gig Harbor across the narrows from Tacoma was swept away by flames that raged unchecked for more than two hours tonight.

Damage was estimated at $15,000. No fatalities or injuries were reported.

The work of the fire fighters was hampered by the fact that the city's waterworks had frozen. Chain gangs had to be organized and buckets of water passed from hand to hand from the bay. A Tacoma fire boat was dispatched to the scene and soon had the blaze under control.

Maybe These Two Are The Same Man

Art Relics To Be Brought To America Soon

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—UP—A treasure over which forgotten kings warred and bartered nine centuries ago is to be brought to the United States as a result of one of the most important American art purchases ever made aboard.

Included in the collection are the world famous relics of the Guelphs which have been carried across most of Europe by fleeing armies, zealous priests and minions of the monarchs of Hanover since the days when Europe knew of no land called America and the edge of the world was somewhere in the middle of the Atlantic.

These relics—they are valued conservatively at $2,500,000—have been purchased by the Goldschmidt galleries of New York and Frankfurt from the Duke of Brunswick Lunnerburg, son-in law of the former kaiser.

Exhibited Here

Julius F. Goldschmidt said today that they would be brought here for exhibition as soon as the intricate task of cataloguing has been completed.

The Guelphs are the traditional defenders of the holy Roman church; Their fued with the Chibellines is written in detail across the pages of medieval history. For centuries the treasures of the Guelps have been in the custody of the Dukes of Brunswick and the kings of Hanover.

The significance of the relics is more than artistic, Goldschmidt pointed out for the copper, gold and silver wrought figures contain many items of religious interest.

Somewhere back in the tangled genealogy of the kings of Hanover there was one Henry the Lion, an intensely devout ruler who made numerous pilgrimages to the Holy Land. He brought back religious relics, such as a piece of the arm bone of Saint Theodore, and ordered his goldsmiths to fashion figures of precious metal around the relics.

To these figures miraculous cures have been attributed. They meant to the Hanoverians what the Ark of Covenant signified to the Jews. Contrary to custom, these religious relics will not be removed from the statuettes when they are brought to this country.

BRITIAN HOLDS KEY ROLE AT NAVAL MEET

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON AT SEA, Jan. 11.—UP—The United States, which at the 1921 naval conference startled the world by its proposal for the scrapping of battleships, is expected to bow to Great Britain in the guidance of the new five-power naval conefrence which starts in Londin in ten days.

While Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and other members of the United States delegation enroute to London aboard this liner have made no official announcement of their program, it is expected Great Britain and the United States will reverse the roles of 1921. The United States this time would stand more in the background, although exerting a strong influence.

Stimson has refrained from making statements which would seem to dictate to the conference or lay down requirements.

Whereas Charles Evans Hughes at the Washington conference laid 26 warships 11 of them new, on the altar as a sacrifice, and persuaded Great Britain to scrap 24 old ones, Stimson has no such dramatic proposals.

The most apparent proposal of a practical nature to be made this time will be for the extension of a battleship "holiday" to be made either by Britain or the United States.

France may propose total abolition of battleships as an answer to the Anglo-American suggestion for abolition of the submarine but if she does it will be with no expectation of seeing it accomplished.

The main principle of United Stats parity with Great Britain has already been conceded. Britain is willing to cut her demand for 70 cruisers made at Geneva, to 50, and the United States is prepared to agree at about that level. Thus Britain, like America in 1921 occupies a key role at the conference.

Stimson plans to confer with the heads of the other delegations before the conference, hoping by informal exchanges of view sto establish a working program.

The mountaineer, named Campbell, arrived here this morning and said he had learned that three feet of snow had fallen at the Rhinelander camp Friday and that "more was coming down". It took Campbell all day Friday to battle his way eight miles over snow-piled trails, he said.

Plans were made to start a rescue party toward the Rhinelander camp early Sunday. It was planned to carry two horses and a sled on a truck as far as possible. When the truck became stalled the horses will be used to drag the sled and if this plan proves impractical men will push on by snow shoes.

MAIL FLIER LOST IN HEAVY STORM

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 11—UP—Salt Lake airport officials had received no report today of Maury Graham, Western Air Express pilot, believed forced down between here and Las Vgas, Nev., by a snowstorm which swept the region last night.

Officials of the company said that Graham took enough fuel at Las Vegas to last him until late today.

The missing aviator is known as one of the most skillful fliers in the west and has flown the Los Angeles to Salt Lake night mail run since Western Air started the route in April, 1926. He piled up a record 418,512 miles over the territory.

Graham made a distinguished aviation record during the war and has a wife and two children living in Hollywood.

COOPER, ARLEN BRIAN HERE TUESDAY

"The Virginian," which comes to the Fox-California theater for a three day run beginning on Tuesday next, brings together for the first time three of Hollywood's most popular young screen players. They are Gary Cooper, Richard Arlen and Mary Brian. All three have been under contract to Paramount since the beginning of their film careers.

Cooper has never been in the same picture with Miss Brian although they have been working on adjoining lots for four years.

Cooper and Arlen were both in "Wings," Paramount's epic of the air. This picture started them on their way to success with Charles "Buddy" Rogers. They have not appeared in the same picture since.

Arlen and Miss Brian played together in "The Man I Love" and "Under the Tonto Rim."

"The Virginian" however will bring the three into the same picture for the first time.

Arlen was the first of the trio to reach Hollywood, and the first to be placed under contract to Paramount. He came to Los Angeles in 1921 to seek his fortune in the oil fields. He turned to pictures instead and late in 1922 had progressed to such a point that he was signed to a contract as a Paramount player. His first noteworthy "break" came when he was given one of the two featured male roles in "Wings."

Annett, a former friend of Thomas A. Edison, was closely associated with the early history of telegraph. He died at his home at 131 Eleventh street Thursday night at the age of 85.

FLOODS PERIL MID WEST STATES

which rested on the Pacific coast and the other beyond the Great Lakes. Most of the central west reported higher temperatures but in the northwest and Canada subzero readings were the rule. Battleford, Sask., was the coldest spot at 36 degrees below zero.

In some places the snow attained the depth of 20 inches on the level and in central Oregon drifts measured 20 feet deep.

Deaths and suffering followed in the wake of the blizzard, some 30 deaths being recorded and scores injured on icy streets and in traffic accidents.

Train and automobile traffic continued late through the storm area.

Commercial flying was at a standstill. Sleet and snow snapped telegraph lines and in some sections cut off communication.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA HIT BY STORMS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11—(U.P.)—Southern California tonight was gripped in the throes of a serious storm which in some locations caused extreme suffering and danger to life and property.

Heavy snows locked mountain passes, marooning a number of motorists, while a warning of high winds and gales at sea from Santa Barbara to San Diego was posted by the U. S. Weather bureau.

Snow in the mountain range highways piled from three to five feet, according to reports at the weather bureau. The Roosevelt highway, also known as the coast highway, affforded the only means of automobile travel between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Long Beach Flooded

Life boats were used in a low section of Long Beach to remove women and children from partially flooded homes. Fifteen blocks were flooded to a depth of about four feet and property damage was expected to reach several thousand dollars.

Snow continued to fall over parts of the Ridge Route tonight and motorists unable to penetrate the 18 inch carpet were exposed to cold and hunger. Heavy drifts prevented deputy sheriffs from penetrating to the town of Palmdale over the Mint Canyon road. Snow plows were pressed into service in several districts and every effort was being made to afford relief to sufferers.

Reports reaching Los Angeles were that 53 inches of snow had fallen at Huntington Lake, 18 at Florence Lake and 25 inches at Shaver lake. Big Creek station No. 1 reported the snow was an even two feet deep.

Much Rain

Rainfall was general over the southern part of the state.

Los Angeles, scene of hail and rain storms for several days, enjoyed a brief spell of sunshine just before nightfall and it was indicated that enough clear weather may come to allow completion of the $10,000 open golf tournament and other events scheduled for the week-end.

Winter sports flourished in the nearby mountains although the condition of the highways kept many persons from hazarding the journey to the playgrounds.

One death was reported late today. Fred Duffy, Pasadena, was electrocuted as he was repairing an electric line during a high wind near San Fernando.

ARIZONA HIT BY BLIZZARD

PHOENIX, Jan. 11.—UP—Traffic was paralyzed, telegraph and telephone wires down and some towns entirely isolated in northern Arizona tonight as the result of a 24 hour blizzard that covered the entire area with a deep blanket of snow.

While the entire northern portion of the state was trying to dig itself out of the worst storm in years weather beureau observers announced that more snow was on the way followed by a drop in temperature. No relief was reported in sight for at least several days.

The Grand Canyon was reported entirely isolated with roads impassable and all wires down. Presidente-lect Ortiz Rubio of Mexico was one of those made virtual prisoners at the canyon.

Randell Freed On Decision Of Superior Court

MARTINEZ, Jan. 11—E. B. Randell, of Richmond, was free today after Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie had ruled that he had been illegally committed to jail.

Ruling on a writ of habeas corpus, the court held that Police Judge C. A. Odell of Richmond had failed to give Randell a hearing when he revoked a suspended sentence that amounted to probation. The ruling was regarded as an important one as it affects the practice of minor courts in suspending sentences with the object of later committing the defendant to jail if he is arrested again.

Randell was sent to jail to serve a sentence imposed several months prior when it was reported to the court that he had repeated the offense for which he was originally tried.

DEMOCRATS HIT SUGAR TARIFF INCREASE

beet growing state, pleaded increased protection for the dwindling United States sugar industry. The charged the low rate was in Cuba's interest.

Harrison warned Senators of the Congressional election in November, and predicted sugar could be one of the leading issues if Congress grants the proposed increase.

Scores Act

"You are dipping down into the pockets of the American consumers," he said. "You are not protecting American labor because the beet growers must and do import Mexicans to labor in their fields."

Harrison said the facts justified a decrease in the sugar duty. He cited the tariff commission report five years ago, recommending a decrease of 1-23 cents a point. Smoot contended this decrease was based upon the high price of sugar then.

A bounty for domestic sugar producers was advocated by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, as a substitute for increasing the sugar tariff.

Bounty Planned

Copeland announced his opposition to increasing the tariff because of the hardship it would impose upon the poor people of the country.

He said it would be much cheaper for the American people to pay a bounty to domestic sugar producers than to pay the additional cost of sugar resulting from a higher tariff.

The bounty could be offered, he said, in such a way that it would not increase the average of domestic sugar. Experience has shown, he said, that sugar cannot be grown profitably and economically in this country.

1930 CHEVROLET MEETS WITH APPROVAL

DETROIT, Jan. 11—Following the announcement seven days ago of the improved 1930 Chverolet six at greatly reduced prices, the Chevrolet Motor Company last week launched manufacturing and sales activities designed to meet the requirements of what promises to be another record year for the public appearance of six-cylinder automobiles.

Factory oficials expressed themselves as highly gratified over the reception of the new Chevrolet six at the New York National Automobile show last week. Thousands of orders and hundreds of congratulatory letters from the nation-wide Chevrolet dealer organization told something of the success with which the new product is meeting across the United States.

Meanwhile, so that the thousands of orders already on hand may be taken care of with a minimum of delay, the 16 giant Chevrolet plants are speeding toward capacity operation with all the haste consistent with Chevrolet's precise manufacturing methods. Employment of the Chevrolet factories is at the highest January level in the history of the company, with many of the plants maintaining two shifts.

Connell and Shumate, Twenty-third street and Barrett avenue, are Richmond dealers for the Chevrolet Six.

SAN PABLO 9 TO MEET MOTORS HERE TODAY

Umpires are clearing their throats, and more than 20 Richmond athletes are eating a light breakfast this morning in preparation for the "game of games". Fans are lying in bed overtime in order to conserve their energy till 2 o'clock this afternoon when the Thomas Motors and the San Pablo nine will tangle on the First street diamond for the first time during the second round of the Oakland Winter league.

One of the greatest crowds in the history of the league will probably attend this epic contest between the two most outstanding teams. That great rivalry exists between the Motors and the San Pablans is a well known fact, and that a pot of gold in the form of the entire gate receipts will go to the winner is also in circulation. Therefore, the local promotors have every reason to believe that a crowd of large dimensions will observe today's game of games.

Two of the strongest lineups ever to be placed on a local diamond will go on the First street lot today. An all-coast league battery is boasted by L. J. Thomas, Hurst, hurler for the Oaks, will start on the mound for the Motors, while the receiving for the Motors will be performed by Borrieani, also of the Oaks, and who has just returned from a sojourn in Seattle.

Caster or Ball are expected to see action in the box for the San Pablans while Bill Gauldori will be on the receiving end for the San Pablo culb.

The local managers have not neglected to line up first class basemen and outfielders, judging by the quality of the announced lineups.

The athletes who will see action with the Motors squad are: Figuerido, cf; Mailho, lt; Panella 1b; McCoy, 3b; Krasovich ss; Labitich, 2b; Compano, utility.

The San Pablo squad will include: Silva 2b; Kelly, rf; Church 1b; Martin lf; Tierney, ss; Huzefka, 3b, Wickesser, 1b; Gregory, Banducci, utility.

BEAR CAGERS TO MEET OLYMPIC QUINTET

BERKELEY, Jan. 11.—UP—The University of California's basketball team faces a strenuous period of competition this week and next, starting with Tuesday night's clash with the strong Olympic Club quintet and ending Saturday evening, Jan. 25, with the first game of the annual Stanford series, at Palo Alto. There will be no rest for the Bears from now on, for between those two dates are scheduled meetings with U. C. L. A. and St. Mary's at Oakland auditorium.

For Tuesday night's engagement at the Oakland pavilion, the Olympic Club presents another powerful aggregation. The Post Streeters have had few off-seasons in recent years, and this season's quintet is reputed to be one of the best.

The meeting will be enlivened by the presence of Sam Ladar, former star guard for the Golden Bears, who has signed up with the club team. The Olympic squad is largely made up of former players in the northern division of the Coast conference colleges, although in addition to Ladar there are three former college players of northern California, Frank Schuppert, guard, of Santa Clara; Phil Morrissey and Les Potts, both of St. Ignatius.

Coach C. M. "Nibs" Price's plans for the game are as indefinite as they were before the first two games of the U. S. C. series last week-end, but his lineup, aside from the forwards, will likely include Kent Pursel at center, Bill Davis and Carl Vendt at guards. Wilson Tripp, Joel Cofield and Willis Nealson are the leading forwards.

For the club, Roy Okenberg, for two years an all-Coast forward at University of Oregon, and Frank Wilson, an all-Northwest guard for two years and end and halfback on the club's football team, will probably start at the forward places. Steve Antoncich a former Industrial league player in Seattle, will be the tip-off man, with Gene Miner, club veteran of six seasons and Cal Boberg, Rocky Mountain conference all-star player for the University of Utah, at the guard posts.

Under the tutelage of Coach "Cack" Hubbard, the clubmen have downed all opponents, including Oregon State and the Y. M. I. of San Francisco.

The Bear freshmen and Lowell high school teams will clash in a preliminary game.

Bears Prepare For Ice Hockey Games Feb. 15

BERKELEY, Jan. 11.— A program and rules to govern intercollegiate ice hockey matches and speed skating at Yosemite valley Feb. 15, 16 and 17 were announced today at the University of California by Jack F. MacKenzie, assistant graduate manager of the Associated Students.

The rules and program have been drafted for the three-day meet in which California, U. C. L. A. and U. S. C. and probably Occidental College will participate. MacKenzie, with E. Des Baillet, director of winter sports at the national park, also acted for the two southern universities in formulating plans for the meet.

Two hockey matches on the first day, morning and afternoon, will open the tournament. On the morning of the second day the winners of the first day will meet in the finals and the losers will clash in the afternoon. The following morning, the last day of the meet, the loser of the finals and the winner of the game the day previous between the two losers will battle for second place. The tournament will be concluded in the afternoon with speed skating in two heats at 440 yards and one two-mile race. The highest scoring team will be awarded the Hoover winter sports trophy.

California and U. S. C. last season inaugurated the annual winter sports meeting at the valley when hockey teams of the two institutions clashed in three matches, the first ever played outdoors in California. The Bears were the victors three straight.

U. C. Quintet Beats Trojans

OAKLAND, Jan. 11.—UP—University of California basketball players tonight evened the count with University of Southern California winning 27 to 19 before a crowd of 3500 persons in Oakland auditorium.

The score of Friday's game was [redacted] showed unexpected strength here tonight and swamped Stanford by a score of 63 to 30.

The score was said to be one of the largest ever registered in Pacific coast basketball. The Bruins seldom missed a chance at the basket while the Cards shot loosely and had a ragged defense.

The Bruins ran up 16 points to one for Stanford in the first five minutes and at the end of the half the score was 30 to 10.

Studebakers, Santa Fe Meet Tomorrow Night

Santa Fe's cagers will loom tomorrow night on the city league card to be played at Richmond Union high school. The Santa Fe A division squad will tangle with the Studebakers at 8 o'clock. The Santa Fe Indians of the B division will clash with the Civic Center Tires at 7 o'clock while the Santa Fe Renegades will meet the Nationals at 9 o'clock.

If the Studebakers succeed in defeating the strong Santa Fe quintet, they will be tied for first place in the A division with Garfinkle's aggregation. However, they will not go into first place without receiving exceptionally stiff opposition from Santa Fe's squadron. If Santa Fe is victorious, it will go into a second place tie with the Studebakers. Tomorrow night will be Santa Fe's last chance to secure a position in the finals. If successful tomorrow night, Santa Fe will have a chance to tie for the cup when they meet Furrer's in the final game of the season Jan. 28. In any case, the Studebakers will tangle with Garfinkle's boys on the final city league card.

A large crowd of Santa Fe sympathizers are also expected to be on hand to support their two B squads in the minor games on tomorrow night's card.

L. A. GOLF PLAY HALTED BY STORM

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—UP—Blustery southern California weather, including rain squalls ushered in on chill winds today forced postponement of the second round of the fifth annual $10,000 Los Angeles tournament, until Sunday.

The play was called off as the contestants scheduled for an early start this morning gathered at the first tee and surveyed a boggy course. The greens were soaked from an all night rain and pools of water stood on the fairways and filled the traps.

Officials of the junior chamber of commerce, backers of the tournament, immediately got in touch with the management of the $25,000 Agua Caliente tournament and a compromise was reached whereby the Los Angeles tournament could be held up without interfering with the big event below the border in Lower California.

Opens Jan. 20

The Agua Caliente tourney was to have opened next Tuesday with practically the same field of players now contesting at the Riviera Country club for the Los Angeles Open big money. It was agreed that the Mexican tournament would be called off until Jan. 20.

Johnny Rogers, long driving young professional from Denver, Colo., will start out on the second round two strokes ahead of the field tomorrow if the weather clears enough to resume play.

Rogers found conditions to his liking in the opening round and came through with a 70, one under par for 18 holes.

Seavers Third

The Denver professional was followed by Charlie Seaver, young Los Angeles amateur recently returned from Hun preparatory school in New Jersey, and Al Espinosa, veteran professional player from Chicago. They each made 725 by consistent shooting in every department of hte game.

Bunched behind Seaver and Espinosa are Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., one of the outstanding favorites; Leo Diegel, professional at Agua Caliente and National P. G. A. champion, and Denny Shute, professional from Columbus, Ohio.

The 74 class, still considered in the first rank for final honors, are Bobby Cruickshank, New York; Billy Burke, Port Chester, N. Y., Abe Espinosa, Chicago; Fay Coleman, Los Angeles amateur; Tommy Armour, Detroit, and Massie Miller, Norwich, Conn.

Games Sunday

Willie Hunter, Montebello.; Ben Collrin, Los Altos; Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, Wash.; and Arthur Bell, Honolulu, had cards of 75.

Johnny Farrell, former National Open champion, was the leading light in the division which made the round in 76.

MacDonald Smith, winner of the last two Los Angeles opens, had a rather disappointing 77, while Walter Hagen, British Open champion, faced an uphill comeback to the money ranks due to his 81 strokes.

If the weather allows resumption of the tournament tomorrow, the players will turn in 18 holes of the second round and the 50 low scorers will shoot it out over 36 holes on Monday.

Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble Relieved

FONG WAN
Eminently Successful Herbalist

2946 Morgan Ave.
Oakland, Cal.
Nov. 19, 1929.

THE FONG WAN HERB CO.

Dear Mr. Fong—I am writing this letter to express my gratitude for the splendid results and benefits I have received from the use of the Chinese Herbs prepared by you.

I had a complication of Liver, Gall-Bladder and Stomach Trouble with sharp, stabbing pains in the lower right side of my Abdomen. The region of the Liver was exceedingly sore and tender; so much so that even loose clothing became irritating and uncomfortable. My Stomach was also very sore to the touch and felt as if there were a lump the size of an egg in it. After meals, food which was very sour and burned the throat, was returned to the mouth.

This condition steadily became worse over a period of a year. During this time, I was treated by two doctors without any appreciable results. Both decided that an operation was necessary.

By good fortune, I came into contact with a man whom you had treated successfully for an Ulcerated Stomach, and he strongly urged me to take your treatment. This I did.

Results were noticeable the very first week, and now, after six weeks, I am entirely free from the terrible stabbing pains and the soreness over my Liver. My digestion is good. The old feeling of lassitude has completely disappeared and I feel much brighter and more energetic than I have for years.

I am most happy to strongly recommend the herbs of the Fong Wan Herb Co. as prepared by you.

Wishing you unbounded success, and again thanking you for what you have done for me, I am

Very cordially yours,
CYRIL MAW.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

"GENERAL CRACK"

BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.

The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore, is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Count Hensdorff, special envoy of King Leopold, has traveled on horseback to reach the Château of General Crack, the soldier who has never lost a single battle, and whose support would mean victory to King Leopold in his battle to sustain his title of Emperor. The aristocratic Hensdorff despises General Crack as a base-born commoner, and dislikes his mission. He has come to offer Crack the hand of the Emperor's sister, if he will support him. He is chagrined to learn that General Crack has his eye on another lady, Princess Eleanora, daughter of Anhalt-Dessau, whom Leopold intends to marry.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Glibly he wished success to the Count's mission, and suavely he drank the health of the young Archduchess. Colonel Pons, who appeared to dislike him rather brusquely changed the subject, speaking of a hunting party arranged for the next Tuesday which he hoped Count Hensdorff would honour with his presence.

"Nay," replied that gentleman, "I must take my answer and begone."

"With a picture of General Crack for the Archduchess," smiled Gabor slily, at which his colleagues laughed derisively, but Hensdorff kept his gloomy countenance.

"It is all very well for you to laugh," he sneered, "but things change very rapidly these times. You are all snug now, but the time may come when you will be glad of a word from me to the Emperor."

"Well, we shan't get it, I know," answered Colonel Pons. "And I, for one, shan't ask for it. I mean to die in my last battle—"

"How," asked Hensdorff, "will you know it is your last battle? In every encounter you will save yourself for the next till you are too decrepit to stir abroad."

A lackey entered and respectfully told Colonel Pons that General Crack wished to see him immediately.

The Colonel hastily left his unfinished supper and hurried away without apology. Hensdorff sat sullen between Banning and Gabor and occupied himself with his food.

III

THE apartments of General Crack were in the left of the Château beyond the theatre, on the ground floor; they were approached by a guardroom with stars of bayonets on the walls and a design of pistols on the ceiling, where four Uhlans sat in full-fed leisure.

Beyond was an antechamber from which opened a laboratory.

Here sat Herr Lippmann, the astrologer and alchemist, who looked like an unfrocked priest.

Colonel Pons passed him, with a quick greeting, and hurried, with his strutting way and important air, into the next room.

"His Highness," said the doctor with decorum, "prefers to lie in the dark, but he is awake and you may speak to him through the curtains."

"I was sent for," replied Colonel Pons, eyeing the bed with respect. "I hope my presence is still required—"

"It is," conceded the doctor. "Pray be seated; when His Highness desires to do so, he will speak to you."

Colonel Pons rather gingerly took one of the frail looking chairs, folded his hands on his rotund person, turned his bulging blue eyes towards the bed, and waited.

This bed was in the center of the room and closely curtained on all four sides with rose cloth of gold. The page cuffed the apes, who dared to chatter on their cushions, and the barber crept into the adjoining closet where he began to mix hair lotions in a marble basin; faintly came the sound of the bottles clinking one against the other.

"Is Your Highness awake?" ventured the doctor, fingering a phial of rich thick medicine.

A voice answered from the bed: "Yes, but I want no more of that concoction, Doctor."

"It is an excellent and potent physic," remarked the doctor regretfully, "containing fifty rare ingredients—"

"And all of them devilish in taste and action," replied the voice. "I'll have no more plasters, bleedings, doses or pills for a mere wrenched ankle—Pons, what did Hensdorff say?"

"Shall I draw the curtain, sir?" asked the Colonel.

"No, I prefer the dark. I can hear you and you can hear me, and what more is required for a conversation?"

"Hensdorff," said Colonel Pons, "has come with a very desperate offer from the Elector of Bavaria, whom he calls 'the Emperor,' and requires an immediate answer."

"He shall have it—no offer of his is likely to require thinking over—"

Maria Luisa, the woman in the case.

"Well, I don't know. I expect, sir, you'll be a little surprised."

"Shall I, Pons?"

"He offers his sister, the Archduchess—"

"The lame one?"

"Maria Luisa. With the title of Archduke as dowry."

"Nothing else?"

"Your Highness knows they've got nothing else."

Silence from behind the bed curtains.

"Of course, if they succeeded, the thing would be very handsome, no doubt. On the steps of the throne—"

The voice interrupted:

"When I'd smash the Allies they'd find an excuse for backing out—"

"Naturally the marriage would take place before the campaign opened," said Pons. "Hensdorff is as full of tricks as ever; he told Banning one round lie at least. He said the Emperor had settled with Anhalt-Dessau."

"For his daughter?"

"Yes."

"Perhaps he has, behind my back. Anhalt-Dessau is capable de tout."

"And so, sir, is Hensdorff. I told him you were sure of the lady."

"And that," said the voice with sudden weariness, "was another lie, Pons."

"Not so deep a one as his, I daresay, Monseigneur. Well, that's his offer, neither more nor less. And I was to give Your Highness the picture of the Archduchess, as they name her, and a letter from her brother."

"I believe I saw her once, Pons, but not thinking of her in this way, did not notice her. Give me her picture—"

"It does more credit to the painter than the sitter, but if you took her it would hardly be for her beauty, so it is less matter."

A hand, half hidden in a lace ruffle tied with a black ribbon, came out between the folds of brocade and took box and letter; it was then withdrawn, and Pons heard the curtains being pulled apart on the far side of the bed.

"They have made the best of a plain women," remarked General Crack. "A bitter contrast to the others, eh, Pons? It's no—and no—"

"I am to say 'no' to Hensdorff, then, sir?" he asked doubtfully.

Watchers at the field saw the plane get away, and then it headed into the northwest, circling as it went to aid its climb. Finally it faded away high up in the sky.

During the next few hours the plane was all but forgotten. It was faded away high up in the sky.

During the next few hours the plane was all but forgotten. It was a regular test and there was nothing about the flight to attract unusual attention.

Fail To Return

In the afternoon, when Marra and Kirkpatrick had not returned, their fellows on the ground began to wonder. When 3 p. m. passed and nothing was heard of them, it was realized their fuel must be exhausted.

A heavy ground fog rolled in around Farmingdale, increasing anxiety.

Search Starts

By evening, it seemed almost certain there had been a mishap. The Coast Guard was notified and asked to have its ships watch for the plane, in the belief it might have come down at sea. All fields in the vicinity were called by telephone, but none had news of Kirkpatrick and Marra.

When morning came without trace of the two men an airplane search was organized, the Army and police cooperating with private concerns.

Aviators believed that probably the fog prevented a landing in the vicinity of Long Island and that an accident overtook the two in some remote spot, possibly in New Jersey.

Hoover Will Give Views On Dry Law

Adams had deliberately insulted the coast guard.

Warren said Adams, speaking before the Boston chamber of commerce, shortly before he sailed for Europe, sought to discredit the coast guard by "sneers and innuendos."

Shooting Scored

Adams' speech followed a protest meeting in Boston common, against coast guard killing of three seamen aboard the Black Duck, a rum runner.

Speech Quoted

In his attack on the secretary of the navy, Warren quoted Adams as saying:

"I want you to judge men of the navy as I see them, and not as you see them in Boston common. Maybe the men in the common are not navy men. Perhaps they are from the Coast Guard."

This was "listened to humorously" by Bostonians, Warren added.

"This statement is a deliberate insult and slur on one of the noblest organizations in the world," Warren told the House, "and it is utterly unworthy of a man holding a high position in the official family of the president. The truth is that, man for man, and officer for officer, the coast guard will stand on the same plane with the navy 365 days of the year.

Scores Talk

"I would hate to think that a man holding the high office of Secretary of the Navy would engage in loose and irresponsible talk and I believe the country is going to believe he meant exactly what he is quoted as saying.

"Secretary Adams exercised his usual propensity for saying the wrong thing at the wrong time, a habit, as I recall, which has heretofore brought embarrassment to the administration."

Warren referred evidently to Adams' criticism of independent republicans in Congress for failing to cooperate more fully with the administration.

Postal Clerk Kills Self Before Crowd

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—(U.P.)—Lewis A. Miller, 43, a postal clerk discharged a sawed-off shotgun into his brain before a startled group of persons in a branch postoffice here today.

Investigators said Miller had suffered from heart disease for several years, and lately had grown despondent. He lived at Alhambra, and is survived by a wife and son.

DEATH OF IRELAND PRIEST LINKED TO TAYLOR MURDER

to his word. Disbrow disappeared.

FITTS UNRAVELS SNARLED THREADS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11.—UP—Snarled threads of a mystery as absorbing as any motion picture thriller were being unraveled tonight and belief was general that solution of the William Desmond Taylor murder was near.

During the past week the United Press found and interviewed two heretofore missing witnesses and the information obtained was given to Buron Fitts, Los Angeles district attorney, who has started an investigation into the circumstances of Taylor's death.

One of the witnesses, Otis Hefner, a paroled convict, told the United Press that he was leagued with Taylor and Edward Sands, former valet for Taylor, in a dope ring and that Taylor was in danger because members of a southern California drug ring thought he was informing federal authorities.

Names Star

Hefner contended, however, that he thought a motion picture star killed Taylor because of jealousy.

Henry Peavey, negro personal servant for Taylor at the time the noted motion director was killed in February, 1922, was the other witness.

Peavey was questioned at the coroner's inquest but told the United Press that part of his story was never made public because the "district attorney's office wouldn't let me."

In Los Angeles, Fitts told the United Press that information obtained from Hefner and Peavey was valuable and that it fit in with reports made by his investigators.

"Sufficient Evidence"

"We have sufficient evidence for an indictment now," Fitts was quoted as saying. He added, however, that he wanted a complete case, with facts instead of presumption in all instances.

Edward King, investigator for Fitts, has been assigned to the Peavey and Hefner phase of the case and will obtain official statements from both and probably will take Hefner to Los Angeles.

The significant part of Peavey's story, told exclusively to the United Press, is that he heard a woman quarreling bitterly with Taylor the night the director was shot.

Hefner said he saw the same woman, a prominent motion picture star, leaving the bungalow shortly after midnight of the evening Peavey heard the quarrel. Peavey did not tell of the quarrel at the coroner's inquest.

Sent To Folsom

Nothing was known of Hefner by Los Angeles authorities at the time Taylor was killed. According to Hefner, he left Los Angeles shortly after the killing and later was convicted and sent to San Quentin. He was paroled from San Quentin, violated that parole and was sent to Folsom where he told what he knew of the Taylor case to prison authorities.

After telling his story at Folsom, three years ago, Hefner was paroled because it was feared that members of the drug ring in prison would kill him.

Sands Sought

Hefner and Peavey were two of three witnesses sought by Fitts. Edward Sands, the former valet of Taylor, is the other. He disappeared when Taylor was killed and was last heard of in Mexico. A new police bulletin was issued in Los Angeles this week, asking police of the world to arrest him.

It was Sands who first discovered Taylor's body, according to Hefner. The pair drove to the bungalow to deliver a package of drugs, Hefner said, and as they arrived a motion picture celebrity was leaving. It was the same woman that Peavey says he heard quarreling with Taylor a few hours earlier.

SANDS HUNTED AS VITAL LINK

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—UP—Seeking the "one link" which he believes will bring a solution to the murder eight years ago of William Desmond Taylor, prominent screen director, District Attorney Buron Fitts continued through today sifting the value of information turned over to him.

A score of his investigators were running down new and old clues, hoping to produce for Fitts the single concrete fact he thinks he needs before he can take definite action against anyone in the case.

Fitts' it is known, has been working on the murder for 11 months and has reached the point where the solution appears near but is yet elusive.

King In North

The prosecutor hoped for good word from Ed King, special investigator who was sent north to interview two missing witnesses located in San Francisco and Sacramento by the United Press.

King was expected to report first on a meeting with Otis Hefner, paroled Folsom convict, who told the United Press he believed he had seen the slayer of Taylor leaving Taylor's bungalow on the night of the murder.

Hefner also claimed a former close friendship with Edward Sands, valet to Taylor, who disappeared mysteriously shortly after the director's death.

King probably will bring Hefner south with him but first he will go to Sacramento to talk to Henry Peavey, negro cook who found Taylor's body.

Local Search

Locally Fitts directed a score of his men in an attempt to get a line on Sands, whom Fitts believes is necessary to the successful conclusion of the investigation.

Sands was heard after the murder when he wrote here from distant cities and Fitts hopes to run him down.

Sands has been sought the first investigation and Fitts believes he now has leads which will lead to the capture of Sands.

The original investigation of the Taylor slaying brought into it such names as Mabel Normand and Mary Miles Minter, then two

MORTEMOTH KILLS MOTHS

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that, upon expansion, the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.

NEW OAKLAND IN RECORD TRIP TO VALLEY

Slipping up to as high as 89 miles per hour on open stretches and showing amazing pulling power in high gear, a 1930 Oakland eight sedan made a test run over the Big Oak Flat road to Yosemite Valley, Friday, December 27, up to Glacier Point and back to Stockton via the All-Year Highway, according to word received here by J. P. Strom, 1229 Macdonald avenue, Richmond, Oakland-Pontiac dealer.

A. H. Patterson piloted the Oakland sedan from Stockton at 4:20 a. m. The fog was so dense that the turn into the Farmington road was missed, and so the car continued on the longer Collegeville Valley Home route.

Fifteen miles above Oakdale, the party ran out of the fog and began to make better time. Damp spots on Priest's grade were ice-coated, requiring careful driving, yet Groveland was reached in two hours and five minutes. But from Groveland on up the car began to show its amazing pulling power.

"So far as is known, no other car ever took that grade above Hangman's Tree and Bret Harte's cabin on high gear. The Oakland eight not only took it in high gear but picked up speed on it," said Strom. He continued:

The first gear change was made 97 miles from Stockton, on the grade going out of the Berkeley municipal camp grounds, on the south fork of the Tuolumne, but the shift to second was not necessitated by the steepness of the grade but because logging trucks had cut the road up and the ruts were full of ice and water. In less than 100 yards the car was back in high gear, and no more gear changes were made until the car reached the Yosemite Park line some six miles above Carl Inn.

"The Oakland was driven into the famous 'stage coach' tree in the Tuolumne grove of big trees and 15 minutes were spent in taking pictures.

The car went into high gear again some 200 yards below Crane's flat and remained in high gear all the remainder of the way to Yosemite Valley. The party pulled up in front of the superintendent's office at 8:46. The elapsed time from Stockton had been 4 hours and 26 minutes and the running time 4 hours and 3 minutes.

Army Flight Mishap Reported

BUTTE, Mont., Jan. 11.—UP—The first mishap of the army pursuit group flight from Mount Clemens, Mich., to Spokane, Wash. was reported late today in a radio message from Grand Forks, N. D.

The message, picked up by Butte amateur station W7FO and signed by Major Royce, flight leader, said:

"Lieutenant Rogers hit runway and broke ski. Sending ski to town to be welded. No word from O2K or transports. Flew through light snow for about 45 minutes and averaging about 1000 feet during flight. Many planes need attention and we all hope transports can catch up."

Local Man Dies In Martinez Hospital

CALIFORNIA 33 IN LEGION DRIVE

More than one-half of the 1930 membership quota of the American Legion was attained before the beginning of the new year, according to an announcement received from the Legion's national headquarters at Indianapolis, Ind. A telegraphic roll call of all departments, giving the membership figures of each department as of midnight Dec. 31, 1929, showed that 50.41 percent of the 1930 national quota had been reported, although not yet of official record on the treasurer's books at national headquarters.

This is the greatest advance membership in the history of the organization and is more than double the membership standing for the same date one year ago.

The Legion began the year 1929 with 22.75 percent of its national quota paid up at National headquarters.

The department of Arkansas, the home state of National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, continued to lead all other departments by a safe margin, reporting a total of 106.19 percent of its 1930 quota. Arkansas is the only department that has thus far exceeded its quota for the year. The department of Wisconsin was in second place with 86.32 percent of its quota. The reports showed that the department of Panama was in third place, Idaho fourth and Kansas fifth.

"Every department is to be congratulated on its splendid membership effort," said National Commander Bodenhamer. "Beginning the new year with such a fine membership means that the Legion will be in a position to accomplish more in 1930 than it has in any preceding year, if the strengthening of Legion ranks continues as it has started."

NEW YORK HAS CRIME BUREAU

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—UP—Grover Whalen, New York's police commissioner who believes in nailing crime before it gets headway is about to put into practice this theory by establishing a 'crime prevention bureau."

Operating with policewomen and later turning to socially minded civil service operators, Whalen intends to put a sort of "helping hand" department at work in the city's police stations.

Police women are to watch the pool rooms, dance halls and resorts where young people gather and try to induce them to go to work and keep out of bad company. In the case of wayward young people, the "crime preventers" are to confer with parents, teachers and social workers to endeavor to keep young people out of trouble, out of court and out of jail.

THE NEW OAKLAND 8

GENERAL MOTORS' Lowest-priced Eight—

$1045 AND UP

Three years of actual designing and testing preceded the announcement of the New Oakland Eight. In addition it incorporates General Motors' sixteen years' experience in building fine eight-cylinder automobiles. This mature background accounts for its sound basic design.

Superior Performance

The New Oakland has an 85-horsepower engine. This is the highest power ever employed in a car of Oakland's size and weight, racing cars excepted. Oakland develops one horsepower to 37 pounds of car weight. That's why few cars are as fast. That's why few, if any, can pass it on the hills. That's why it accelerates so rapidly. In fact, that is the reason for its superior performance.

Eight-Cylinder Performance

With its high speed and fast acceleration, the new Oakland combines the smoothness resulting from the overlapping power impulses inherent in eight-cylinder design. This smoothness is intensified by such features as its complete down-draft fuel distribution, its patented laminated spring and rubber engine mountings and a new type of cylinder head which assures uniform combustion.

Only a close inspection and a demonstration will enable you to understand fully the many advantages provided by the New Oakland Eight.
